Coffee & Conversation every Sunday from 9:00am-10:00am

Feb. 2: "A People of Resilience" with Rev. Alice Syltie

Our February theme is Resilience. What does it mean to be a people of resilience? Is it about being tough and independent? Is it learning to live together in a complicated world? Is it about taking care of ourselves physically, emotionally, and spiritually? If it means all of this, how might a covenanted community, like UUCP, support us in being A People Of Resilience?

Feb. 9: "1840: Two Faiths for America" with Rob Pallme, UUCP Member

In the first half of the Nineteenth Century the new United States had to define itself and find an identity to present to the World.

The various regions had different societies and various goals.

In New England two influences presided: The "Age of Enlightenment" required a respected academic status, particularly in the fields and methods of science. The Industrial Revolution was creating social problems, caused by the exploitation of people by ambitious, impersonal owners and corporations.

In this talk we explore how these factors influenced the development of the Unitarian and Universalist faiths.

Feb. 16: "A People of Resilience" with Rev. Alice Syltie

It makes sense that Resilience is the theme for February, which is the month we are called to honor African American History. February was chosen because it also contains the birthdays of Abraham Lincoln and Frederic Douglass. This Sunday we will consider the spirit of resilience that gives an oppressed people the will to survive and allies the heart to continue the struggle for justice.

Feb. 23: "The Sweet Spot" with Erin Renfroe, UUCP Board Member

The Sweet Spot, recently featured in the Small Congregations Webinar series, is a simple way of visualizing priorities and resources when trying to decide on a course of action. We'll take a look at the model and how some of UUCP's past and present decisions might fit into it. (Come ready to participate in an interactive Recognition of Service – your homework is to think about who is making a difference in the life of our congregation.)

Mar. 1: "A People of Wisdom" with Rev. Alice Syltie and Bob Gerold

The theme for March is Wisdom, leading us to ask, What does it mean to be a people of Wisdom? Does greater wisdom require the accumulation of knowledge or data? What do we gain from study and reflection of our own lives? In a two-part presentation, March 1 and 8, Bob Gerold and Rev. Alice will consider what wisdom has to say about our judgement, choices, and decisions.

From Your Minister

February brings us the theme of Resilience. An appropriate theme for a month with less daylight and lots of gray skies. For people who suffer from Seasonal Affective Disorder, it can be a long month. February falls pretty much in the middle of the winter season and a lot of us are ready for warmth and sun. My husband and I used to take a vacation to some place warm every February. It gave us something to look forward to in December and January. When we returned, we knew we were half-way through the winter and spring was not so far away.

This week as I am looking ahead to February 2, hoping that Punxsutawney Phil won't see his shadow, I am reminded of the movie Groundhog Day with Bill Murray. Resilience is certainly built into the theme of the movie.

Bill Murray plays Phil Connors, a disgruntled weather reporter, who begrudgingly makes the annual trip to Pennsylvania to report on the Groundhog Day celebrations and whether or not Punxsutawney Phil sees his shadow. Due to a blizzard, Phil is trapped in the town and ends up waking to the same exact day over and over again. Phil starts out a cynical, grouchy man and perhaps the message is that he is trapped by his own attitude. After waking up to the same day several times, he realizes that no matter what he does there will be no consequences. He will wake up the next morning as if the day before never happened. His self-centeredness shows through as he indulges in binge eating and drinking, one-night stands, robbery, and reckless driving. After spending several loops trying and failing to court his colleague, Rita, the news producer, he becomes depressed and desperate for a solution to end the loop. He kidnaps Punxsutawney Phil and drives off a cliff with him, even going as far as committing suicide various times, but he continuously wakes up to "I Got You Babe" on the radio.

What we end up seeing is a total transformation of character. When Phil finally realizes that he can't even kill himself to solve the problem, it seems he decides to make the most of the situation. He starts noticing what is around him and trying new things. He begins to find joy in kindness and relationships with others. He learns to play the piano, to ice-sculpt, and to speak French. He helps some older ladies fix a flat tire, he catches a child falling from a tree, and saves a diner from choking. On one loop he shows up smiling and eager to report the news, which surprises Rita. They spend the day together and she is impressed by the new Phil. At a charity bachelor auction, she successfully bids on him. During the time they are together he tells Rita he loves her, and that because of that he will be happy, even if he is doomed to wake up alone every morning. The next morning he wakes up again to "I've Got You Babe," but the DJ banter is different, and he discovers Rita is still with him.

As the new day begins, the other people are all the same, but Phil is no longer caught in his own shadow and the world looks brighter. Perhaps one path to resilience is to embrace our reality, focus on our own growth and formation, and reach out to the world through kindness, compassion, and love.

In Love and Hope,
Rev. Alice

President's Column

Love is the spirit of this church. We inspire love at UUCP. We join this church because we love the UUCP community. We belong because the mission and the WHY of our congregation resonate with us. We covenant together to be contributing members of this Beloved Community by attending and giving to support the church.

The fact that we're able to maintain our budget and a Charitable Trust solely through the investment of members and friends is an amazing feat that reflects our dedication. How we spend our money and our time as a congregation are indicators of who and what we love. Talking about money is uncomfortable but important. Members participating in the discussion program in December wanted to be more aware of our financial status. Being better informed about our income and our expenses at UUCP can be worry-making yet empowering. When we get clear about our budget, we take responsibility for our part in it.

Church Treasurer Erin Renfroe provides a quarterly financial report to the Board to monitor that the church is on track with the annual budget approved by the congregation. The Board also authorizes any necessary adjustments along the way. These reports are available from the Treasurer or a Board member for any curious or concerned member. The congregation, as a whole, receives budget updates twice per year. As happened in our recent Mid-year Congregational Meeting, the Treasurer recaps the budget year that ended on June 30 and reviews our standing for the first part of the current budget year (July 1 - Dec 31). At the Annual Congregational Meeting, the proposed budget for the next church year will be presented for a vote by the congregation.

If our budget reflects what we value, we at UUCP value the paid personnel and contractors who help us get things done. Our minister, CRE Coordinator, Office Administrator, childcare provider, lawn care provider, and custodian each fill vital roles that we would be hard-pressed to do without. Volunteers could do some of the work these paid folks do — and volunteers have in the past performed many of these roles — but the consistency and commitment of these paid folks free up others in the congregation to expend time and energy in other areas. In many ways, it is a blessing and a relief that we are able to pay for regular services such as mowing and cleaning the building rather than having to scramble together a volunteer crew. There always is a place for volunteers to supplement the routine work by completing special projects or tending to areas in need of attention — but it's nice to have the basics mostly covered.

As a share of our expenditures, compensation for our minister is the most significant, about 50% of our budget, including taxes, insurances, and allowances at required levels and in line with market conditions and UUA guidance for part-time UU ministers. What benefits do we in the UUCP community enjoy for the price of our minister's compensation? According to the UUA, "...ministers are spiritual leaders who help us explore life's deepest questions and challenge us to be our best selves." Harvard Divinity School refers to ordained UU ministers as "ministers, educators, chaplains, advocates and activists in congregational settings and in the community at large."

Rev. Alice has been and continues to fulfill these roles for us. She touches all the areas that top our most-valued list at UUCP: Sunday Services, CRE, Social Justice, and the building and grounds where most of it happens. Plus, she provides many priceless services, such as ministering to grieving congregants and helping us to think more deeply about covenant, mission, and vision so that we can be our best selves within our walls and in the wide world beyond.

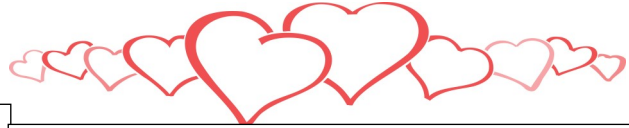

Until next time,

Lauren Anzaldo

One Room Sunday School Happy Valentine's Day!

Greetings Friends and families,

February is the month of hearts to honor St. Valentine, a priest that married people that were in love even when it was against the law. We won't be breaking any laws in Sunday School, but we do a lot of seeking and truth finding, asking questions and looking to our Principles and Sources for answers.

Youth Pathfinders, mark your calendars! Your classes will meet on Feb. 2nd & 9th. You are welcome to join us on the 16th for Chapel in our new location, the Beach Room.

One Room Sunday School, better known as ORSS, will meet all month with the exception of Chapel on the 16th. Our volunteer teachers, Kate Wolverton, Tamara Grimes, and Emma Mulvaney have great plans for you!

Parents, please check in with me, Sarah Stubbs, to make sure your child's registration is up to date. It is very important to have current information.

See you Sunday,

Bill Caplinger and Paula Montgomery participated in the Escambia County School District "Raise the Bar" program on Saturday, January 18. The program is a day-long education event for teachers. Paula and Bill, both members of the League of Women Voters, participated with other LWV members in a skit written and presented by the League and designed to teach 5th Grade students about the XIX Amendment. The amendment became part of the US Constitution 100 years ago, in 1920, giving women the right to vote. Following the skit, each cast member gave a lecture explaining one of the amendments having to do with voting. Among them: the 13th (emancipation), 15th (black men can vote), 19th (women can vote), 24th (poll tax is illegal), and 26th (18-year-olds can vote). Adds Paula, "And we threw in a little plug for the ERA."

Kate and Jack Wolverton recently admired the novel construction of banyan trees in south Florida, then "jammed" along with 35 bands and audiences on the Jam Cruise, touring from Miami to Ocean City in the Bahamas and Costa Maya, Mexico – a 10-day January excursion. Says Kate, "Mostly the jam cruise was about the music," – a passion for UU drummer Jack, "nurtured by the music."

Photos of Banyan trees, from Kate Wolverton.

The 35 bands played virtually nonstop, on the deck, auditorium, and in several bars on the ship, Kate reports. The travelers first spent four days in the Miami area, visiting with friends – four of whom joined them on the cruise – and touring the Everglades. Kate was particularly fascinated by the way the banyan trees grow, noting the trees send roots down from their branches, which then wind closer together creating a bark around the trunk.

Among highlights of the cruise's stops: a visit to Mahahual, a town close to Costa Maya, where "a massage on the beach there was incredible" says Kate, who also admits "we did try some of the tequila." The best of all for the couple, however, was the concert by classically trained pianist Holly Bowling and the memories it renewed. Jack and Kate had enjoyed her music once before – at a Kaiser auditorium concert in California in 1987, which is where, and when, they met.

Welcome new member – Michael Trudeau

When Michael Trudeau came to Pensacola to take a job as aircraft mechanic with ST Engineering, the move felt an instant fit, aligned with his affinity for the Old South, resulting from travels to Georgia's southeast coast and the Carolinas. "I love the antebellum South. I believe Pensacola is truly going to be home for me."

As is our Unitarian Church. "When I was offered the job here in Pensacola, the very first thing I looked for was a UU congregation that I could become a member of... Unitarian Universalism is a spiritual entity that requires no set dogmas of faith or religion, but more a place where I can be myself and worship with open-minded people who care about making the world a kinder, gentler place espousing sentiments of love and acceptance."

Michael's career accomplishments have been plentiful, while personal struggles sometimes have seemed overwhelming.

He served four years in the Navy, another eight in the reserves. He has a Bachelor of General Studies degree from Indiana University, with certificates in business and journalism, and an FAA Airframe and Powerplant license from Vincennes University. He worked in numerous restaurants and helped open a Bloomington, IN, restaurant called Limestone Grille, where he was a front-of-the-house manager and wrote a training manual for servers. He has enjoyed several successful ventures in aviation: working for a regional airline and a flight school, and at Trans States Airlines he was promoted to inspector at their aircraft repair headquarters in St. Louis after only 10 months there as a mechanic.

Michael's personal difficulties began during adolescence, heightened by struggles with his father -- "I think because he sensed effeminate behavior in me and wanted to toughen me up. I often felt that something was wrong with me and I tried many, many times to become straight, but it never worked for me." Years later, in 1992, says Michael, a counselor in an alcohol treatment center "helped me to come to terms with my sexuality, and at 32 years old, I finally started to accept myself as a gay man."

It was struggles with his sexuality all through high school and his formative adult years, he says, that led to his increasing use of alcohol and drugs. In 1992 he successfully completed a 28-day alcohol and drug rehab program in Traverse City, MI, following his third DUI. He stayed sober for 10 years, then began to imbibe in alcohol again; 4.5 years later, in 2007: "I walked into AA once again feeling defeated, depressed and unable to be a participant in society." But today, "I have walked the steps of AA ... and once again regained my sense of dignity and self-worth. ... This coming June I will celebrate 13 years of continuous sobriety!"

Michael was born in Dearborn, Michigan. He traveled extensively within the United States and the Caribbean while in the Navy, and has lived in many places, in Michigan, Texas, Missouri and Indiana, and now Florida. He has numerous hobbies, including bicycling, going to the beach, gardening, cooking, reading, tinkering or fixing things, home improvement and décor, political activism, traveling, antiques and coffee shops.

He was raised in the Catholic Church, "but it never felt right for me." He was introduced to Unitarianism in Traverse City, MI, by his then-AA sponsor, "and felt welcomed and included since I walked through the doors." He later also joined a congregation in Kirkwood, MO.

At UUCP: "I like the welcoming, warm vibe I receive...(and) that the members of the congregation are active and engaging in UU principals and ministry. I would like to see the congregation grow, and I would like to see more of what the church is involved in within the community. I would like to see committee/community tables with info following some of the Sunday services where there could be sign-up sheets for members to get involved.

"I'm happy to be a part of UUCP."

Luunch Buunch

For February's Lunch Bunch, 12 Feb 2020, we'll try Ichiban (Japanese Sushi and Grill) at 5555 N. Davis Hwy., 850-494-2227, with which we have been pleased in the past (two-plus years ago).... I've been reading more reviews lately, and though Ichiban had a few long-ish negative reviews (mainly the service), most of them were pleased with their dining experience. As usual we'll meet at 1:00 pm, and drop a line to hu-turn@juno.com, or call 850-501-5142 by Monday 10 Feb so we can be seated comfortably.

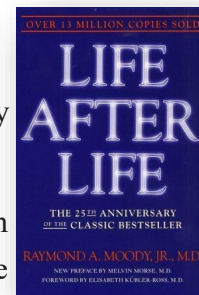

And now, a review of January's visit by 12 of us to Taqueria Olgys, where the parking offered no problem (inside joke), and if you tried the south exit to Hardy Street, you would likely have had more options than the fast traffic going north and south on "W" Street. We 12 occupied 5 tables in the non-booth side of TO's two-room enterprise, so all the noise was our own, and not too much when I took a moment to notice.... TO's vernacular is definitely Mexican Spanish (and the menu "authentic Mexican," not Tex-Mex as is likely found in most places) but the waitress seemed to have little trouble answering the questions of those of us too infrequently sampling the fare.... As usual, and perhaps it was due to my effort to not eat the red meat of the day (they had all three), for the third month in a row I was the last one served.... I suspect that it'll be mucho más tiempo before we pass this way again.

Second Hour Book Discussion Sunday, February 23 at 11:30am

Susan Frishkorn will discuss the classic book about near death experiences (NDEs), Life after Life by Raymond Moody.

Published in the 1970s, the book touched a nerve with the public, eventually selling about 13 million copies. Since that time, many more books and programs have addressed the elusive subject. Some believe that Moody's book is the best place to start a conversation about the possibility of an afterlife.

Are You Crafty? The UUCP Needlers group will be meeting on Wednesday, February 26 at 11:30am

Do you knit, crochet or sew? Would you like to join a lunch bunch and work on a personal project? The Needlers group is for you. We welcome any experience level and any handcraft you can fit in a bag and bring along. Meeting times and places vary, though we usually meet for lunch at a nearby restaurant —this month at El Paso Mexican Restaurant on Mobile Hwy — then head to a member's home nearby to do crafting. We'll meet at Nadine Hubble's house after lunch. Non-crafters are welcome to join us for socializing. Please contact Barbara Goggin (phone 478-2953) for more information.

AMC Classic Pensacola 18
6595 North W Street 32505

Just Mercy, the book, has been adapted into a film playing in theatres now. The film highlights the work of attorney Bryan Stephenson, who is the founder of the Equal Justice Initiative. A widely acclaimed public interest lawyer who has dedicated his career to helping the poor, the incarcerated, and the condemned, Stephenson has won numerous awards, including the prestigious MacArthur Foundation “Genius” Prize and the ACLU’s National Medal of Liberty. Just Mercy was a UUA Common Read in 2015-2016. Visit this website for more information about the film: <https://justmercy.eji.org/responsive/#about>.

JUST Pensacola, the social justice action organization made up of 20 different Pensacola congregations including UUCP, is currently researching the actions that are most needed to improve the criminal justice system in our area, so this is a timely event to help all of us understand how we can help and why we should.

UUs will take an excursion to see the film on Sunday, February 2. It starts at 3pm, is rated PG13, and run time is 2 hours and 16 minutes. Young people are welcome to attend at their parents' discretion. Some folks may decide to gather beforehand for lunch nearby; we will have more information as the date gets closer. Female Astronomer

Unitarian Universalists claim three pioneering female astronomers in our history. The University of West Florida Department of Theatre this month presents a play about another important female scientist, Henrietta Leavitt, who worked as a human computer at Harvard University mapping the stars without receiving any scientific credit. Silent Sky* by Lauren Gunderson opens Feb. 14 and runs two weekends at the UWF Center for Fine and Performing Arts. According to UWF’s description, “Silent Sky is the poignant tale of a woman’s dedication to the stars and the human touch that makes life under the vast sky beautiful and timeless.”

Lauren Anzaldo and Scott Satterwhite have arranged for an ad to appear in the program for Silent Sky. The ad, shown here, highlights the scientific contributions of female UUs.

Shows are Feb 14, 15, 21 and 22 at 7:30pm and Feb 16 and 23 at 2:30pm. Tickets are $18 for adults, $14 for seniors and military, $12 for UWF faculty and staff and non-UWF students, $7 for high school students, and free to UWF students with a valid Nautilus card. How do we Strive for Justice?

UUCP's Collaboration with Social Justice network, JUST Pensacola

The researchers from all the JUST Pensacola congregations, including UUCP, are hard at work. We are interviewing experts and looking at statistics from other places which have dealt with similar issues.

Soon we should have the issues boiled down to an achievable aim. Then we will be ready for the really big event including every member of every congregation (over 1,000 strong), when we present the problem and ask for change from the people who actually have the power to make the changes we need. This large group action is called a "Nehemiah Action," based on the story of the Biblical prophet Nehemiah when he confronted the wealthy and powerful demanding change. In his day, and more recently in other cities using this same type of plan, the result has been change for the better, based on the demands of the people.

Please put the date for our Nehemiah Action on your calendar. It is April 27th; time and place to be announced.

If you have questions call or email Paula Montgomery: montpns@aol.com. In the meantime, contacting your representatives and telling them how you want them to vote on the following issues is an excellent way of influencing the Education Action that JUST Pensacola is working hard to develop right now.
